DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

EASTERN DATES TO NOVEMBER 11.

EASTERN STATES.

The Feeling at Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—There is a feeling of despondency in Boston, but a disposition is every where manifested by business men to meet their reverses manfully and conquer them. At a meeting of the Shoe Leather Association to-day, John Cummings presiding, a committee was appointed to secure from the city government for them the property now vacant of buildings, on which to erect warehouses and resume business. Many of the large dry goods houses burned out have already opened new quarters. The work of opening passages through the burnt district is renewed with vigor to-day. At least one thousand laborers are engaged.

Withdrawal of Engines.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—Nearly all the fire engines have been withdrawn, except those employed in cooling the ruins beneath which safes are buried, which are being dug out all over the region swept by the flames.

Safes Safe.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The safes of the Home Insurance Company and of heirs of the Simmons' estate have been opened, and the contents found in good condition.

Searching for the Dead.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—Exploring parties are at work in various localities, clearing away ruins and searching for the bodies of missing firemen. Members of Hook and Ladder No. 4 are looking for the body of an assistant foreman who disappeared Sunday morning, and a gang of men are also at work among the ruins of Weeks & Patton's store in search of the bodies of men supposed to be there.

Proceedings of Insurance Companies.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The Insurance Companies at a meeting to day, appointed a committee to wait on the Governor and request him to call an extra session of the legislature, with a view of preserving charters and keeping the insurance business at home. A citizens' meeting at the Tremont Temple is called for to-morrow. A table relating to insurance gives the number of companies doing business in Boston at 95 which includes 20 companies admitted since the publication of the report of the insurance commission. The total amount of capital of the companies is $38,025,000. The companies having small risks and the last admitted will pay policies in full. The Boston companies will pay from 20 to 100 per cent., or an average of 50 per cent. of the amounts of their risks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The situation of mercantile affairs is unchanged. Rain interferes somewhat with the shipment of goods, although many orders and buyers are here from Boston for stocks. Boston bonts to-night are crammed with goods. Extra steamers with freight will probably leave to morrow.

Bank Statement.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The following official statement in regard to Boston banks is forwarded to-day:

Geo. S. Boutwell, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington—Seven National Banks were burned out by the fire. All have recovered cash assets and will immediately resume business. I have met the Presidents of the leading banks to-day. All agree that the total loss will not exceed one-half of their surplus of $12,000,000. An excellent feeling prevails.

(Signed) JOHN J. KNOX,
Comptroller of the Currency.

Condition of the City.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—All is quiet to-night. A strong military patrol guards all approaches to the burnt district. The city is still in darkness, the gas not having been let on. The weather is thick and rain falling.

More About Insurance.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—A preliminary meeting of insurance adjusters of leading American insurance companies was held at the Revere House this evening. It organized by the choice of G. J. Bassett, of the Ætna of Hartford, as Chairman; H. E. Bowers, of the North British, as Secretary. Thirty-six companies were represented. No definite action was taken. It was proposed to appoint committees to settle all the various classes of risks. Adjourned, subject to the call of the Chairman.

Extra Session Called.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—An extra session of the Legislature is called to meet next Tuesday.

Statement of Losses.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—An estimate as accurate as could be made from the best informed sources, under existing circumstances, of the extent of the fire and losses, places the burnt district at about sixty acres, and the total losses, including buildings and merchandise, at not to exceed $100,000,000. Another correspondent says the best judges place the losses at $80,000,000.

Telegraph Office Re-established.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The Western Union Telegraph Company has returned to its quarters on State street and has now fifty-five wires to New York.

Police Regulations.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—All the bar rooms are closed by order of the Mayor. The military guard, forming a cordon around the burnt district, has been increased, and no person is allowed to pass without a permit, as follows:

"Pass the bearer within the lines; by command of Brig. Gen. Burrell.

(Signed) H. MOORE, A. A. G."

Military rule is adopted as a precautionary measure at the request of many.

Immense Contributions.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Contributions from Chicago for the relief of Boston are already nearly a quarter of a million dollars. This includes $100,000 from the Chicago Relief Society, and $50,000 from Cook county.

Horse Disease Abating.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—The horse disease is rapidly abating, the streets resuming something of their usual appearance.

More Aid.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—At a meeting of the citizens to-day a committee of thirty was appointed to collect funds for the suffering families of Boston.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12.—A meeting of citizens to-day, called by the Mayor, passed resolutions of sympathy with the Boston sufferers and appointed a committee to ascertain what manner of aid can be most efficiently rendered.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Government Responds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The following telegram will be forwarded to-day:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Washington, Nov. 12.—To Gen. B. F. Butler and Thos. Russell, Collector of Boston: The President authorizes me to say that every possible means of relief and aid will be offered to the citizens of Boston by the Government, and should circumstances appear to demand action by Congress, such action will be recommended by him.

(Signed) GEO. S. BOUTWELL,
Secretary of the Treasury.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—J. K. Wilson, late Principal of the City Academy, has been elected Principal of the Lincoln school in this city.

It is stated that one frugal collector employed by the Harbor Commissioners for six years past, at a salary of $75 per month, saved enough to support his family of seven children, and build a house worth $10,000.

Judge McKinstry has rendered a decision in the case of McDermott vs. Raymond & Ely Mining Company, sustaining the demurrer to plaintiff's complaint, dissolving the temporary injunction and denying the motion for perpetual injunction. Plaintiff asked leave to amend to meet the objection of the court's want of jurisdiction; ten days' time was allowed for that purpose.

A grand jury is empannelled in the county court. Judge Stanley charged them especially to inquire into the affairs of the Sheriff's office, and with particular reference to the escape of the Brothertons from the county jail.

The jury was charged to make diligent inquiry whether the convicts were aided by any creature of the class known as shysters, one of whom he said was of more danger to the public than fifty murderers or forgers. The court charged them also relative to abuses in the Harbor Commissioners' office, that they must make a searching investigation. It would not be sufficient to reach and punish a few underlings, where guilt seems to be admitted by the board itself. Suspicion rests upon one of the members of the board, and neither wealth nor political influence should deter them from fearless inquiry as to his guilt. It is due to the public that such a course be taken.

The steamer Dakota, 90 days from New York, has arrived. Maj. Levi Chase was a passenger. This steamer is in ballast, but brought 175 packages merchandise for Melbourne.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

STOCKTON, Nov. 13.—A mass meeting is called for next Saturday to take further action in regard to the construction of a narrow gauge railroad to Visalia. The citizens seem to be alive to the importance of this road.

A shock of earthquake was felt here this morning about 2 o'clock.

VALLEJO, Nov. 13.—The Vallejo Savings and Commercial Bank has declared a dividend of 1 per cent. for October, payable on the 15th inst.

A gang of workmen are engaged in taking away and piling up the wreck of the elevator.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—City very lively and hotels all crowded, it being the first day of the Southern District Fair. Every county in this part of the State is represented. The Fair grounds are thronged with people.

Afternoon races—Trotting, best three in five, four entrys. Best time, 3:51. A running race, half mile and repeat, was won by Rosie "Irene Harding." Best time, 51 seconds.

The appearance of the grounds, stands, display of stock, condition of tracks, attendance, and general interest, are a great improvement on last, or any previous year.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 13.—No news have yet been received of the Pacific Mail steamer Arizona, now over due from Panama ten days. She is supposed to be delayed by freights at way ports.

The U. S. Revenue Cutter Wyandot was beached here to-day, preparatory to having her foul scraped and bull painted.

The Owens Mining Company was incorporated to-day with a capital of half a million.

Twenty five men are at work grading on the San Diego and San Bernardino railroad to-day, between here and Oldtown. A much larger force will soon be added, with the expectation of completion to Oldtown by the 1st. of January.

The Horse Epidemic.

[Boston Statesman.]

Our deserted streets, swept clean of all traffic except such as can be conducted on foot, tell of the universal prevalence of the demoralizing epidemic whose rise and progress have been detailed from day to day in these columns. It is a greater than Sabbath stillness that has fallen upon the city. The jingle of the horse-cars, the rattle of the stages, the rumble of the drays and the clatter of the multitude of vehicles of business and pleasure have all suddenly become silent. For once, our streets are wide enough. The gallant policeman at the populous crossings has no longer need to lift his omnipotent rattan to check the stream of carriages as he pilots beauty or infirmity from curb to curb. The basket-bearing crowd has deserted the horse-car station. A child might make mud-pies in the middle of Washington street undisturbed. From the rush and bustle of an all-pervading business activity, the city has dropped to the apparent condition of a slumberous country town, so vast is the gap left by the disappearance of vehicles, whose place the hurrying crowds of umbrella-bearing pedestrians can by no means fill. It is a strange sight, and one not without its melancholy effect upon those accustomed to the constant crush and jam and the restless impatience of drivers and horses that constitute one of the indications of prosperous trade and traffic in a busy city. Between two days the storm swept them all from the streets, and left the city bare.

It will be a matter of surprise if this involuntary strike among the horses does not increase the popular estimate of the value of those useful servants. No more effective proof of the dependence we place upon the horse in securing the comforts as well as conducting the business of life, could be afforded. It is only in the loss that we fully realize the necessity. The travelers who find themselves deposited at the railway stations without the means of reaching hotel or residence do not appreciate this more fully than the suburban dweller who foots the weary miles along the silent tramway to his home. The marketman looks with dismay at the cargo of perishable provisions staling for want of transportation, and the merchant helplessly regards the accumulating invoices that cannot reach his store; while the housekeeper waits in vain for the butcher with the day's dinner and the grocer with his parcels, drinks his coffee in Oriental purity uncontaminated with milk, and tastes for once the natural temperature of Obelitzate un-iced. Even existence is brought to a stand-still, and the community must perforce await the recovery of the horses upon whose health the movement of the world is now seen to depend. It must be acknowledged that the plodding crowds of horseless mortals accept the situation with no lack of good humor; and as the epidemic is rarely fatal in its character, it would seem that the greatest harm to be apprehended is only a temporary inconvenience, whose compensation is found in the development of the capacities of ox-teams and pedestrianism, and the creation of a better understanding of man's debt of gratitude to the brutes who are, in fact, the main sufferers in this episode.

Mrs. Horace Greeley.

Mrs. Mary Y. C. Greeley, wife of Horace Greeley, died in this city yesterday morning, after a lingering and painful illness of several years' duration. Mrs. Greeley's maiden name was Mary Young Cheney. She was born and educated at Litchfield, Connecticut. In her youthful maturity she came to this city, and here established a school for the education of young ladies, which she conducted successfully for a considerable time. She subsequently established a similar institution at Warrenton, N. C., which was only discontinued upon her marriage with Mr. Greeley, on the 5th of July, 1836.

Mrs. Greeley was a lady of culture, of very quick perceptions, and of remarkable intellectual and logical power, who took a lively interest in all movements for social advancement, and more especially in measures for the melioration of the condition of her own sex. She was a person of determined will, capable of great endurance in behalf of those she loved, and was a most devoted mother. She had been a confirmed invalid (from disease of the lungs complicated with nervous disorders) for something more than seven years, during most of which time she had been a great but patient sufferer. In search of restored health she had several times visited Europe and the tropics, but without avail.

A few weeks before her death she was removed to the residence of Mr. A. Johnson, in this city, in order that she might obtain medical and other attention, not attainable at the country house in Chappaqua. During the past month her sufferings have been much of the time very acute, and have been borne with calm resignation. Since her disease assumed a critical stage, almost immediately on his return from the West, Mr. Greeley has been constantly in attendance upon his suffering wife, or with her physician, Dr. Bayard. Shortly before the final moment, Mrs. Greeley seems to have been relieved from her intense suffering, and to have passed to her last rest as one sinking into a gentle and peaceful sleep.

In addition to her bereaved husband, she leaves two daughters to mourn her loss—the only survivors of a family of five children.—N. Y. Tribune, of the 2d.

EASTERN DATES TO NOVEMBER 13.

Confidence Restored.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A Boston special says there is no want in the city to speak of. It seems probable that the great reserve capital of the city and thrift and foresight of its people, besides comprehensiveness of regular charities, will meet all demands.

News from abroad strengthen the confidence of the people, who already feel secure in their home incorporations, and there is a reactionary feeling against wild schemes of legislation for relief.

The Herald comes out strong this afternoon against any expansion of the currency or any issue of city bonds in aid of rebuilding, and also thinks the Common should not have been granted to business people for temporary buildings, and that these should have been put up back of the bay lands. It points to the fact that the whole loss is only equal to one year's increase of Boston's wealth, which amounts, by last assessment, to above $70,000,000 in twelve months. An expansion of currency should increase the price of merchandise at the cost of rebuilding.

Advance of Insurance Rates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—At a secret meeting of the Board of Fire Underwriters yesterday, a resolution was adopted making rates of insurance conform to those of 1870, which was understood to be an advance on present rates of from 10 to 15 per cent. The subject of Mansard roofs was referred to a special committee, who, it is reported, will declare uninsurable all buildings and dwellings that have Mansard roofs.

Insurance men are becoming more cheerful and believe the losses by the Boston fire will fall below the estimates of Monday, which they say were placed high enough to cover all risks in the burned districts. Salvages are thought to be considerable.

Why the Fire Spread.

Gen. Shaler, of the New York Fire Department, concludes from an inspection of the burned district, that the spreading of the fire was in consequence of the delay of the firemen in reaching the scene, the narrowness of the streets which made it impossible to enter, and the great heat, which, in an open space, prevented the firemen from approaching the burning buildings.

Chief Engineer Dadell of the Boston Department, says the destruction of buildings by gunpowder tends rather to spread the fire than otherwise.

Quenched in Advance.

People of this city are assured that there is no likelihood of a similar calamity befalling them, because of the abundance of water and the superior organization of the Fire Department. Two new reservoirs are building to contain 2,000 feet of water in addition to the present available supply.

Horse Dropsy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—A species of dropsy has attacked a number of diseased horses throughout the city, supposed to be caused from poison lingering in the system.

The Columbia River Bar

One of the most sprightly writers of this generation opens the first chapter of his sprightliest book with the wonderful wall of terrible breakers make the mouth of the Columbia Achilles of rivers Lander in talk ing, sentence A promontory hoary in the book and read such a one, and put into action, is not likely to lay it aside until he has enjoyed all its succeeding beauties —at these are always scattered over Winthrop's pages with a wonderful profusion

But we are not commencing a review of the book from which this sentence is taken We quote the sentence as the handsomest, and probably the most extensively read specimen of what the writers of books and magazines have been saying for the last forty years and more, to the great prejudice of truth, and for the last twenty-five years, to the great injury of Oregon A wall of terrible breakers is an excellent thing with which to embellish a magazine article or adorn the pages of a book of travel, because, in addition to the leaping and tumbling of the billows, which is a grand sight of itself, there is always supposed to be a plentiful supply of stranded and wrecked ships all around, with their great spars reaching up towards heaven in token of their helplessness, and their hulls lying heavily where the sands of the sea and the bones of lost mariners accumulate and heap up higher day by day But these things, so attractive to the rhetorician are far otherwise than attractive to the owners and masters of ships, and to underwriters. Commerce does not readily seek those harbors which are so well supplied with material for poets and painters use. A wall of terrible breakers is just such a wall as commerce is least inclined to attempt to scale

When the ill-fated Tonquin reached the anchorage off the Columbia's mouth in the midst of the autumnal storms, and when no chart or survey of the entrance had ever been attempted, and no man upon all the high seas pretended to possess a knowledge of the channel, her master proceeded recklessly to sacrifice his boats and a part of his crew, in the endeavor to dash straight in through the reef of rocks that reaches south from a point just outside of Cape Disappointment The only wonder is, not that he should have lost his boats and men, but that either the ship, or any on board, should have escaped The Tonquin and its rash master were reserved for a more tragic fate, but the unfortunate termination of the expedition to the mouth of the Columbia, and the collapse of Astor's whole Pacific coast enterprise, with the simple narrative of Franchere, and the hastily formed but honestly expressed ideas of Mac Donald—both of them speaking from personal observation, and both widely in error—established in the mind of the reading world the most grossly incorrect notions of the entrance to the Columbia. This is the way in which the Columbia bar first obtained its bad reputation, and that reputation has been kept up by similar means ever since. There is a complete literature of these misstatements in the books and magazines that have pretended to give information concerning Oregon. Go abroad and introduce the subject of shipping to the Columbia, and pay attention to the remarks that will be made upon the subject The dangerous character of the bar will be referred to in the strongest terms. One would be led to think that an attempt to make the passage of the bar would be the price of his life. We have been on board steamers crossing the bar a number of times, and have invariably found that passengers on board who were making the voyage for the first time regarded the crossing of the bar with sensations of extreme uneasiness before the feat was accomplished, and expressed themselves as exceedingly gratified when they had got safely over, always congratulating themselves upon having reached that dreaded "wall of breakers" at just the time when the breakers had given place, for a moment, to smooth seas.

Now the fact is, the entrance to the Columbia river is not a dangerous entrance, but is exactly the contrary. With a depth of twenty-four feet at low water, and a channel of ample width, no vessel that ever visits this coast in the merchant service, need be lost at the Columbia bar, or would be lost except through gross carelessness or incompetency And in proof of this statement we may add that no vessel ever struck while in the channel,—and no vessel propelled by steam or in tow of a vessel so propelled, ever need get out of the channel. The anchorage outside is good, the anchorage inside is secure, and there are few more days in the year that a vessel can not safely cross the bar, than there are when it could not safely enter San Francisco bay We shall return to this subject again and shall show by the actual facts that all the prevailing notions about the perilous character of the Columbia bar, are without foundation. A wall of terrible breakers can be seen at the mouth of the Columbia, Achilles of rivers, it is true, but that wall lacks a great deal of reaching across the mouth.

Veto Redivivus

The Herald has come to life again, and has resurrected Governor Grover's veto of the act repealing the litigant newspaper law We entertain so high an opinion of the Governor's discretion, that we can not help thinking he is less anxious to keep this action of his before the public, than his Portland organ appears to be, for his veto message in this case was certainly the feeblest of the many documents that have emanated from the brain of His Excellency, none of which were remarkable for strength

The Herald insists that we shall state more explicitly our views of the legal proposition that these litigant organs have a franchise in the public printing of which the Legislature could not deprive them. We don't know that we are called upon to bother ourselves in that matter, since His Excellency the Governor had not the courage to state his own opinion on the subject, but contented himself with hiding behind a hypothetical "if" and a very mild allusion to the decision of some "high judicial authority" which he intimated had held such to be the law But we thought we had given our opinion pretty explicitly when we said that neither the Governor himself nor any other respectable lawyer would entertain such a proposition, and that his Excellency had referred to high judicial authority that did not exist, to prove a proposition that had no legal foundation We have heretofore called upon the Governor's litigant organ to tell us what authority it was that held such to be the law, and in what case it was so held, but the litigant organ has failed to respond Once more we ask the Herald to produce its authority or else acknowledge that that reference to decisions was a piece of juggery on the part of his Excellency by which to conceal the real grounds of his veto Will the Herald be manly enough to do what his Excellency would much better have done abandon this pettyfogging and produce the authority upon which its proposition is based? Come, neighbor Jon Lv the alliterative logan

A New Historical Chart

Yesterday we were shown an historical chart invented and prepared by Hon S C Lancaster of Salem exhibiting the history of the world from the creation down to the present time The chart is twenty one feet in length, by nearly two and a half in width and is designed to be so mounted that it may be conveniently used either in sections or as a whole We could give it only a superficial examination, for the subject is too vast in its extent and complications, to admit of anything like a thorough examination in the brief space of time which we could bestow upon it, but we say, with the utmost candor, that in our opinion one can come nearer to a perfect understanding of the salient points of the world's history, and their relation to each other, by an hour's study of this chart than by a month's study of any historical compend we have ever seen It would be futile to attempt here a practical description of this ingenious device for presenting in one view the history of the world, with the rise and fall of empires and kingdoms, the decisive battles of all ages, the developments of the arts and sciences, the habits and customs of all nations at all periods, and every other important fact of history By its synchronous events are shown in their relations to each other, so that one can see at a single glance not only the date of any given event, but all contemporaneous history as well as that immediately preceding and succeeding, and the social condition of the world at the time. Every person has realized the difficulty arising in the study of history from being compelled to follow a single thread of the great stream from its point of divergence down to the present, or till it is lost again in other branches, and thus being deprived in a great measure of the assistance that a comprehensive view of coeval matters would render him in his efforts to master the rationale, as well as the facts, of a given movement in the drama of nations This difficulty is completely met and overcome by Mr Adams' chart To have this chart before you is to have all histories open at once, and be able to read all at the same time

We confess that this Oregon production has both removed a prejudice we have long felt against this class of literary effort, and made us feel more proud of our young State, for we cannot but regard this as Oregon's greatest achievement in the field of historical scholarship Mr Adams having devoted several years to the work of preparing this chart, is now canvassing for subscriptions for it, and intends having it lithographed as soon as there appears sufficient encouragement to justify him in doing so The lithographing will be very expensive, but it ought not to fail for want of sufficient support.

We feel assured we shall not have to apologize for this extended notice to any of our readers who have seen the work of which we speak.

That California Judge who yesterday charged the grand jury to investigate thoroughly the escape of the Brotherton forgers and find out whether they were assisted by those "creatures known as Shysters," whom he declared to be more dangerous to society than murderers, struck the right note Let all our Judges take up the suggestion until the creatures referred to are banished from the profession. No more needed reform can be inaugurated.

There is no accounting for tastes. From this morning's dispatches it is plain that the milch cows of California have taken to eating cobble stones and bricks, for how else could such things get into the butter? But how does this agree with Dr Holland's assertion that animals will not eat the stones that obstruct the brook, so long as they have the privilege of drinking the brook itself?

The news from Boston is to the effect that no assistance from abroad is likely to be needed There appears to be ample means in the city for taking care of the sufferers The systematic charities of the city are so vast and comprehensive as to be apparently equal to this great exigency

It seems the aggregate amount of the losses by the Boston fire, is little if any larger than one year's increase of the wealth of the city, the assessment roll of this year showing an increase of $75,000,000 since the last preceding assessment

PROCEEDINGS OF THE OREGON PRESBYTERY.

[From the Statesman.]

CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY.

The Oregon Presbytery met at 7 o'clock Monday evening for the purpose of celebrating the Centenary of three great events, occurring in the year 1572—the death of John Knox, the great Scotch reformer, the massacre of Saint Bartholomew's Eve, and the organization of the first Presbytery in England Interesting and feeling addresses were made on these subjects by Rev Mr Plompon of Oswego; D Gearey of Albany and Dr Lindsley, of Portland

OVERTURE FROM THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ANSWERED

The Presbytery then proceeded to answer the overture from the General Assembly on the dismission of the ministry The basis of the overture being as follows 'Shall a minister in this church who feels that he has mistaken his calling, have just leave to retire from the ministry and shall the Presbytery by the direction of the Synod drop him from the roll of the ministry, a minister who has thus accepted as such?' Answered in the affirmative

On motion the Presbytery adjourned to half past eight o'clock Tuesday morning.

DELEGATES TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Tuesday morning Presbytery met, spent thirty minutes in meditation and prayer

Appointed Rev I R Geary D D and Elder T M. Read, delegates to the General Assembly to meet in Baltimore in May next

CONCLUDING BUSINESS.

The Presbytery appointed Rev I R Geary, D D to moderate a call in the Salem Congregation at convenience of parties

Having finished all business on the docket the Presbytery adjourned at 10 o'clock A M to meet at the Lapwai Reservation, May, 1873

UNION OF CHURCHES—THE REASON WHY

The reporter having interrogated Rev Mr Stewart in relation to the causes operating to bring about a union of the United Presbyterian Church, with the Presbyterians, that gentleman furnishes the following.

A reason why the United Presbyterian Church of this place has gone over to the Presbyterian Church are,

Because they felt trammeled by some rules of the United Presbyterian Church—such as excluding from their communion all persons connected with secret societies prohibiting the use of instrumental music and all songs except the one hundred and fifty psalms of David from praise, also because of close communion The code of the United Presbyterian Church, pinching them as they thought, the Pastor, session, and the larger majority of the members concluded to join themselves with a more liberal connection

Steamboats will hereafter be able to make regular trips at least as far up the Walhamet as to Salem. One reached that place on Tuesday.

THURSDAY MORNING NOV 14 1872

CITY.

THE "WAR" ON HOUSE.—Since the primitive days in the history of Portland when the ark or ferry was but a mere unwieldy flat boat propelled by a couple of strong minded donkeys (not small portable engines reporters) persons who have had occasion to cross the river have been compelled to stand on the banks without the slightest accommodations in the world On each side of the river there has been no house where passengers could repair and wait the arrival of the ferry For years people have stood upon the chilly banks of the Willamet shivering in the sleet and rain of winters, and sweltering under the sultering influences of a summer's sun Time and time again has the press spoken of the great need of waiting houses on each side to accommodate travelers But for, lo! these many long years, the enterprising owner of the ferry has disregarded the admonitions and suggestions of the press as well as the more appeals grabbed shivering, and perspiration of benumbed or over heated passengers A few weeks ago as a cold and hard winter appeared to be coming on, the proprietor ceased to be, erected on the eastern side of the river, at the foot of L street, a snug little house The building is situated adjacent to the landing, well furnished with light, and is to be comfortably warmed The house is ready to accommodate the public and answer one of the pressing wants of the community, felt keenly for many years But in every community there are to be found persons who attach more importance to private interests, than to public accommodation although the comfort and convenience of hundreds may be involved Parties objected to the locality of the "little house" as pathetically alluded to A petition was circulated praying for the speedy abatement of that nuisance The matter very properly went before the 'Dads" of that thriving nascent city And here is what disposition was made of the question of shall, or shall not that "waiting house" be suppressed? at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees: "The Committee on Streets and Public Property, to whom had been referred the petition for, and the remonstrances against the appropriation of the foot of L street as a ferry landing, reported that the Board had no power to pass such an ordinance as prayed for in said petition, and recommended that the ordinance be indefinitely postponed Also, that the "waiting house" referred to in the remonstrances as being in the street contrary to the wishes of adjacent property holders and to the damage of their property, that the Street Commissioner be instructed to notify the owners of the house to have the same removed Report adopted and Street Commissioner instructed to give the required notice" Against the first proposition—relating to the ferry landing—we have no comments to make but how much longer must the public be compelled to freeze and sweat by turns before a house will be provided on each side of the river? That is the conundrum, and we give it up

DANGEROUS SPORT.—Venturesome boys still continue to indulge in jokes, in a practical sort of way, with the locomotives on Fourth street, notwithstanding the fact that their parents, in most instances, have given strict orders to the contrary, and the press has adverted many times to this dangerous habit. Familiarity with the formidable looking machine has robbed it of much of that terror which its first appearance on the streets was wont to inspire in the breasts of our juvenile population Boys who once gave the locomotive a "wide berth," in sailor's parlance, and carefully avoided its coming and going, now stand so near the track that the passing train almost brushes them off, or attempt to clamber on the cars in a reckless, reckless manner, when the speed of the locomotive will admit of the venture Our attention was called to the very reprehensible conduct of a crowd of boys on Fourth street yesterday morning The locomotive, with three or four platform cars attached, was backing slowly down the grade, just above the Sisters' school The speed of the cars was the signal for the boys to make a general scramble to see who could climb on the cowcatcher. In this dangerous pastime, about a dozen small boys participated The engineer shouted to the reckless little scamps, but to no purpose. A gentleman made some of them desist, but the rest took up the chase and went excitedly down the track. A few succeeded in clambering on the catcher, but the most of the boys were knocked off and left behind in the race. No fatal result attach to the engineers if some of these lads are run over and killed, for they exercise all the caution necessary to avoid accidents, and if boys are determined to try the weight of the "modern juggernaut," let the consequences of their rash conduct rest on their own divoted heads. Fatal accidents will assuredly occur if this sport is not stopped Again we say that parents should see to it and not allow their children to go near the cars when in motion A very severe whipping might not fail to inspire in juvenile minds a wholesome respect to parental orders.

TRUE AS GOSPEL.—We learn by the San Francisco papers that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in that city, have threatened to prosecute a professional aeronaut if the said aeronaut attempts to hoist a horse in a balloon for the edification of curiosity gazers, as he has advertised to do on the Sabbath day Treating of the subject, an exchange very truthfully remarks "It seems to us that the Society and its valiant Secretary could find better business for the scope of their genius than interfering with this aeronaut and his horse show If this Society, or some other would look after the cruelties practised on men and women; if they would watch the low dens and dandfalls where boys and girls are nightly polluted by the atmosphere of crime and debauchery the public would consider such "prevention of cruelty" an very much more useful than is existing with a showman" As yet, there is no such Society organized in Portland, but if some Society was organized to keep an eye on these evils of which this city, young as it is, is no stranger, the ends of humanity would be observed There should be no disposition shown to discourage a Society which has for its object the abatement of cruelties to the dumb creation; but while such humane societies are laboring to secure kind treatment to animals, the fallen and depraved of our own race should not be overlooked

THE CHARTER RECEIVED.—The D. V. I received, a few days since, the charter for the institution of a new Tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men, which will be located in Portland The new Tribe will be known by the name of Oneonta There are now three Tribes of this excellent order instituted in Oregon, and the new Tribe will constitute the fourth Although this order has been introduced in the State but a little over three year—April 27th, 1869—its membership numbers already over 400, embracing many of the prominent and influential men of the country The order is in a flourishing condition, and bids fair to equal in membership the Odd Fellows and at no far many of the older and more wealthy orders The motto of the Order is Freedom, Friendship and Charity.

WRECK GATHERED.—A large quantity of iron spars, copper rigging, etc which were gathered from the wreck of the four masted ship Hattie C Morse, on the Sound have recently been sent to San Francisco and sold This vessel it will be remembered was driven ashore, about one year ago, and totally wrecked twenty miles south of the entrance to the Straits of Juan De Fuca What remained of the ship was sold by the Board of underwriters to parties on the Sound Subsequently nearly all the rigging and other valuable portions of the vessel were recovered and shipped below

WESTERN SCHEDULE.—Col Hooker, general agent of the Oregon and California Stage Company, is now in the city on business connected with the company He has been traveling over the lines between the northern and southern ends of the advancing lines of railroad and completing arrangements for a winter schedule By the new arrangements passengers can remain over at Yreka eighteen hours and make connections with trains both ways

ENCOURAGING.—A gentleman from Fort Yamhal, informs us that the Presbyterian Mission Church has a membership of 186 on the reservation All the members with few exceptions are Indians of the Nez Perces tribe This denomination has not entered that misionary field of labor long, but the efforts thus far made to reclaim and christianize these Indians have met the most gratifying and encouraging results

REVISION OF ORDINANCES.—At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of last Portland it was resolved that the Board resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the subject matter of revising the ordinances of that city in accordance with the amended charter

STILL THEY COME.—A large number of Chinamen were brought to this city yesterday on the steamer Fannie Troup These graders came from along the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, beyond Kalama

FOR ADULTERY.—The grand jury in the Circuit Court returned a true bill yesterday in the case of the State of Oregon vs E J Taylor The defendant was arrested a few days ago on the charge of living in open and habitual adultery and the case brought to the notice of the grand jury The indictment lies on the Columbia river some distance from this city He is rather an old man and has several children

PAY ON SIGHT.—The following telegraphic dispatch was received Tuesday by M A King, General Agent of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, from W B Johnston General Agent at that place Our whole liabilities in burnt district $1 (19 000 Our English directors authorize Now York agency to draw on them at sight for Boston loss

CAPTURED.—Two sailors who deserted from the bark Lorenzo several days ago, were captured yesterday by the U S Marshal Deputy Marshal Williams started down to Astoria yesterday evening on the tug B Holladay having in custody the deserters. He will transfer them to the Lorenzo after which that bark will sail for her destination

LARCENY.—Mrs Caroline Ferry, a lady (?) of police court notoriety, was arrested yesterday on the charge of a man named Andres She is accused by the warrant of having stole a silver watch the personal property of Andres, of the value of $50 She gave bonds in the sum of $50 for her appearance in the Police Court this morning

NO QUORUM.—No quorum appearing at the Council Chamber last evening the Common Council adjourned until the next regular meeting There were present Mayor Wadsworth, and Councilmen Burton, Moreland, Russell and Story Absent, Councilmen Besser, Caywood, Congle, Hallock and Hill

VICE CONSUL APPOINTED.—The President of the United States has recognized John Wilson, Esq., as Vice Consul of Her Britannic Majesty at this city, vice J G Flowerdew, deceased Mr Wilson is a member of the firm of Howell Wilson & Co, and has only been in our midst a short time

IN DESTITUTE CIRCUMSTANCES.—We learn that there is a family (a widow with two infant children) living on the corner of Front and Clay streets, who are in extremely needy circumstances For the past few days the neighbors have rendered what assistance they could, and they now ask from those charitably disposed.

SPECIAL MEETING.—A special meeting will be held to morrow (Friday) evening at 7 30 o'clock, by the members of Multnomah Tribe No 3, Improved Order of Red Men The object of the meeting is to institute a new Tribe of the Order, to be called Oneonta, a charter for which was received but a few days ago

DETAINED.—The steamer Albany, while ascending the upper Willamet last Tuesday, met with an accident opposite Fairfield which detained her some time Some portion of her machinery gave way, requiring some repairs, which kept her over until Wednesday

FOR CORVALLIS.—One of the Willamet River Transportation Company's steamers left the basin at Oregon City, Tuesday morning, with the intention of reaching Corvallis if the stage of water on the upper river would admit of the passage of a boat.

MRS WALDRON'S BENEFIT.—This very estimable lady and accomplished actress, will take a benefit to morrow evening at Oro Fino Theater The beautiful and pathetic drama of "East Lynne" will be produced expressly for the occasion

PASSED OVER.—The rains have caused the Willamet to rise sufficiently to allow the steamer Senator to cross the bar below Oregon City without touching. Until within a few days she has been scraping the shoal every trip

FOUNDATION STARTED.—The foundation for the new stable for the Street Railway Company, has been commenced The building will be ready for occupancy by the last of this month.

AMUSEMENTS.

Cleantha Grove No. 4, U. A. O. D will give a pleasant social hop at the Armory Hall, Thursday evening, 21st inst.

A moderately fair audience was present last evening at Oro Fino Theater. The audience was not large, a fact attributable in a great measure to the farewell entertainment given on the same evening at Masonic Hall by Mr Vivian The intensely thrilling drama of 'The Detective," was rendered for the second time in this city Many of the slight defects noticeable on Tuesday evening, were remedied, and the play ran smoothly from opening to close The fire scene was without doubt the best scene of that description ever put on the stage in Portland, and won rounds of thundering applause The excitement of the audience at the last, final climax, was most intense, many rising to their feet The drama and its rendition was decidedly worthy of a large audience The same piece will be produced to-morrow evening All should see "The Detective," as the grand fire scene at the termination is worth the admission alone

The farewell entertainment given by Mr Chas Vivian, at Masonic Hall, last evening, drew a full a house as has ever assembled in the city. Every seat was taken before night and when the crowd began to assemble, temporary seats were arranged in the aisles and were filled, while a portion of the crowd were compelled to stand Owing to the unavoidable absence of Mr. Wyatt, who was unfortunately caught up a jury which could not agree, some change in the programme had to be made, but the other amateurs who took part in the exercises filled Mr Wyatt's place in the best possible manner, and the entertainment passed off very pleasantly. The instrumental trio, by Messrs DePrang, Hatch and Harris, was finely executed, as are all the musical efforts by these gentlemen Mr Smith's readings were well received and proved him a very good elocutionist The singing of the solo 'Waiting," by Miss DuBoise, was a very attractive feature of the occasion A solo by Mrs DePrang was finely sung and heartily applauded by the audience Mrs DePrang was encored but declined to favor the pleased hearers with a repetition of her singing The song of Mrs DePrang and Messrs Hatch and Richter we reckoned among the best during the evening Mr Simmons' recitation of the Fireman was admirably rendered and received merited applause But the feature of the evening and that which seemed to fill every body with delight was the great Vivian sunshine who fairly took the house by storm with his inimitable and unique delineations of the unexcelled delineations and conditions of comedy. Suffice it to say that when one has seen and listened to him for an hour human nature can truly say it is rich, rare and racy" Vivian is a vivacious vivifier

The Key to Health

It is the easiest thing in the world to lose the blessings of health but when lost it is not easy to regain it The popular idea of fifty years ago that a tremendous scouring of the bowels was an essential element of cure in almost all diseases, has fortunately for mankind, been pretty effectually exploded. The introduction of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, nearly a quarter of a century ago, may be said to have given the coup de grace to drastic purgation The world has learned from the beneficial effects produced by that admirable preparation, that one medicine may embrace the three properties of a tonic alaxative and an alterative; that the three curative processes of invigoration purification and regulation may be compassed at the same time by the operation of a single agreeable remedy There are sound, philosophical reasons for the remarkable improvement which the Bitters occasion in the condition of a deranged and enfeebled system This pure combination of vegetable juices not only strengthens the stomach stimulates the appetite and braces the nerves, but also imparts tone and vigor to the excretory organs—as the skin, the liver and the kidneys—and if the blood has become too thin and watery to nourish the body properly, enriches and vitalizes that "raw material" of all the solid portions of the frame At this period of the year, when intermittent fevers, bilious disorders, stomach complaints and dyspeptic and diarrhoic ailments are always more or less rife, occasional doses of the Bitters will be found the best antagonist against the atmospheric conditions which generate them An occasion of general vigor is necessary to enable the system to resist the morbid influence of the malarious vapors which rise from the earth at this season, and of all the known invigorants Hostetter's Bitters is the safest and the most potent

What Made Him Shine.

[From Appleton's Journal.

We met him on the Waverly road two miles out of town, trudging along with both form, eagerly poking about in the dust with a long crooked stick. Well, that was nothing unusual—we had often seen him before with the same heavy stoop in his shoulders and carrying the same knotted staff, which was too long for a cane and too slender for a support. He seldom looked up, but when he did his eyes, set far back in his head, were small and sharp and gray and searching, and they fell again almost instantly to the ground. We had seen him in town, wandering up and down the streets, prying into every crack and cranny of the stone pavement. We had crossed him in the lobby of the opera, ever stirring about, but wrapped wholly within himself over the pattern of the carpet, we had spotted him in the court room, moving rest nely around, always scanning the floor with the same intent expression. We had passed him on the turnpike still with his keen and sleepless eyes bent rightly upon the ground—and had met him in all those places, his anxious yellow face taking no heed of us; but that day we met him on the Waverly road, two miles out of town.

We had been on a ride, partly of pleasure, partly of business and were driving back to town. It was a beautiful morning in June, the brilliance of the sun subdued by a single cloud in the deep blue sky. There was no moisture in the air, nor on the waving lawns and in the dewy and pleasant fields the grasshoppers were holding a jubilee. We put the top of the buggy up to shield us from the heat, and allowed the horse to choose his own pace which had slacked of its own will while we leaned comfortably back in our seats, enjoying the situation. My friend watched the old man a good while, and said:

"What a singular creature! I have often wondered who he can be, for I believe he haunts every nook and corner of the town and country. How terribly stooped he is! But he does not appear to be feeble, because I never saw him quiet; and though he takes no notice of anything about him, he has a strange, eager manner, as if he might be upon some business of pressing importance."

I replied that I had often noticed it, and could never understand whether why he carried that crooked stick, for certainly it was of no possible use. As we had passed him, I turned round, when George said suddenly:

"Why, Joe, see there! What's the matter with his clothes? They shine so if they were covered with spangles! Just look at them! And what on earth is he doing?"

There the old man, who had bent for an instant on one knee, jumped up and shrieked out:

"Twenty-three thousand, five hundred and ninety-seven."

George and I, scarcely crediting our ears, looked at each other in blank amazement. We looked at each other, and looked at him. What could it mean? We drove in the reins, and called, without receiving any reply. We called again, and louder; but the old man, with his eyes fixed upon the ground, persisted in utter silence, and sent up such a thick cloud of dust by the rapid movement of his stick that we could hardly see him. When it cleared he had nearly reached the toll gate, and we were obliged to content ourselves simply with astonishing ejaculations.

That night, about twelve o'clock, the two of us were returning on foot from the theater, when whom should we meet but the strange old man who had so aroused our curiosity in the morning!

He turned quickly around the corner, and came upon us so sudd nly that he brushed against my left side in passing. The night was dark, and he was out of sight in a moment. But what was the disguise unless we heard for an instant, like the rasping wings of an insect? And when I held up my left arm, that coat-sleeve was torn in small, three cornered rents! I looked at George in mute inquiry, and we both gazed behind into the darkness; but there came no answer from any place.

It must have been more than a week after this that, one bright afternoon, I was taking a stroll by myself in the upper part of the town when I met the old man again. This time he came upon me so unexpectedly that I did not see him until he was just opposite, when he suddenly bent a one knee, stooped to the ground an instant, then jumped up and shouted, in a metallic voice:

"Twenty-four thousand, two hundred and seventy-eight!"

It turned round to look at him, but at the first glance I covered my eyes with my hands, almost blinded, for he flashed like quicksilver in the sun; and, before I recovered, he turned down some alley or street, and had disappeared, and I found myself more completely bewildered than ever before. I related the incident to Geo ge but he could throw no nearer solution to the mystery—for mystery it certainly had now become. Neither of us could even suggest a possible explanation. It undoubtedly had not been an optical illusion, for, when we met him in the country, George had witnessed the same luminous phenomenon, though perhaps not quite so vividly.

But I had made another discovery in the glance that I caught o' him this time, for, quick as it was, I noticed a peculiarity about him that I had never seen before. His finger-nails were almost an inch in length, and trimmed to a point, sharp as black talons. I did not call George's attention to this—why, I cannot say unless because the remembrance of their claw-like look invariably made me shiver, and, hardly knowing what to think of the old man, I did not mention it, then, besides, it was really but a trivial circumstance.

The following day I was at the bank proved remarkably heavy, at least my particular share. It seemed to have taken a sudden freak of remorse for the easy time it had been allowing me, and immediately concluded to make full atonement. I worked steadily through all the morning and half the afternoon, allowing myself only a few moments for dinner. About three o'clock, tired and cramped to position, I leaned back in my chair to take a good stretch, and had just closed my mouth after a most refreshing yawn, and came near upsetting the desk, when I heard the teller say to some one,

"He thinks when he gets twenty-five thousand that something grand will happen to him, and he'll be among the highest in the land. He works hard enough for it, poor old fool is no doubt about that, if the whole world was looking on. Of course, the very first time he tries to get twenty-five thousand shows that he is badly cracked, utterly crazy. It is a queer case, I see, but nobody can reason with him about the matter."

I had not heard who he was talking about, nor did I inquire, but I thought to myself as I trimmed my pen: "Well, twenty-five thousand is not much; you have ten times that amount, and did not come by it very easily either, but nobody thinks you are 'cracked' or 'utterly crazy' and it is hardly 'queer' that a person should want money in this age of the world, and, if he is honest, it is more than can be said of—"

My quill had a most beautiful point. Indeed, I quite prided myself on the art of pen-making, and, highly pleased with the satisfactory result of this delicate operation, I fell to work again with renewed energy, forgetting all about twenty-five thousand or fifty thousand, or any other particular thousand, in the high piles of notes that still remained to be entered. I plodded bravely ahead, but my good humor was not destined to be of long duration, as, before they were greatly diminished, I discovered another job, for which, certainly, I had made no calculation.

It was a mistake, resulting entirely through the carelessness of the indorser. I immediately saw a seven-mile trip into the country for some of the bank clerks, and I suspected more than likely it would fall to my lot. I could not help mentally anathematizing all people in general, and this man in particular, for being so loose about business affairs, and apparently caring little how much trouble and inconvenience he gave to others. After appealing to the Fruling of the head decision, it turned out just as I had anticipated: first, that some one must go out and see the man personally; and, second, that I must be that unlucky "some one." The job had just a redeeming feature, which was, that a day or two, or even three, made no especial difference, otherwise it really would have been beyond my Christian forbearance, as it was already late, and I was tired, and the afternoon hot and disagreeable.

I waited until Thursday, vainly hoping that the heat might moderate, or that it might rain, but the morning dawned without any change in the temperature. Finding it impossible to delay the matter still longer, I went over to the livery stable, ordered the buggy, and, as I had previously gained George's consent to accompany me—for there is no society I would like so well as his own—I drove to his lodgings and picked him up without wasting much time.

After all, I did not know but it was better than being cooped up in the bank, which, if it was not as bright, was considerably hotter, for the wind felt very pleasant, blowing softly against our faces, and the farms lying along t. e road, spreading far out as the eye could reach, were far more entertaining than the musty pages of a ledger. As the cherries hung dead ripe upon the trees, the black birds cluttered about them to rob each other with red-stained bills, and the cats, stretched lazily in the sunshine, watched the winged robbers with no charitable feelings. The leaves, if they were thirsty, complained but gently, and the locusts, the grasshoppers without flagging still held their jubilee and filled the level pastures farther off came the sound of distant bells, and sometimes close by the roadside the farmers whetted their scythes.

Yes, it was certainly not so disagreeable as I had imagined, and, while we rolled pleasantly along, I experienced quite a revolu on of feelings toward the author of this forced journey. When we arrived at our destination, and were ushered into his presence, the business was speedily accomplished, and after I had satisfied what remained of my irritable feelings, by showing in a gentlemanly manner, the heinousness of the mistake, and fully impre d the awful consequences that might have resulted from it on his mind, we stepped into the buggy and turned our faces homeward. George proposed returning by our favorite route, and, as it would but deprive us almost a mile, we crossed over to the Waverly road.

We were hardly more than half way back, when for the first time, we suffered from the heat. The singing of the insects ceased. Every breath of wind had expired, and nothing stirred in the dead calm that bound up the land like a mighty spell. The very atmosphere grew stagnant, and its sulphurous folds hung over us with a heavy oppression. The sky was like polished brass, the ground like heated stone. I had hardly turned to look at the west, when the wind broke loose with a sudden rush, and the birds, screaming in their fright, whirled in confused circles. There was no time to be lost, and I knew from experience that I could not manage the horse in a storm. We drove rapidly for a shed, which stood fortunately but a short distance beyond.

Already the black cloud that I had seen, an inky point above the horizon, had reared itself into a gigantic mountain and shot its jagged pinacles over the zenith, and a few swollen drops of rain splashed in our faces as we gained the shelter. Just at that moment the strange old man, with the bow heavier in his back, and his sharp grey eyes, eagerly searching every rut and gully, came up the road, paying no heed to the threatening tempest. Suddenly he stopped as I had seen him before, picked up something from the ground, then, throwing himself back, flourished his long, knotted stick with a wild, triumphant gesture over his head, and shouted in a loud, metallic voice:

"Twenty-five thousand!"

Instantly a vivid flash broke from the edge of the ragged cloud, and ten thousand sparks of fire lit up the old man, who fell upon the road—killed by lightning.

We ran up to him immediately, and, even before the thunder had rolled away, the mystery was fully explained, for the electricity had been attracted by innumerable pins, which were stuck straight through his clothes with their points outward.

OYSTERS—HOW THEY GROW.—The new trade already gives an impulse to oyster raising. The oyster "spots" as soon as it is free, assumes the most active state of life and motion, dancing and gyrating up and down in concentric columns of midgets playing in the evening sunbeams. A microscope shows how exquisitely these little fellows are fashioned. A pair of tiny shells, the counterpart of the mature oyster, inclose the yet rudimentary organs, while affixed to the mantle is a kind of tiny cornet, composed of minute, hair-like appendages (cilia). The violent and ceaseless vibration of these living paddles serves to row the infant oyster rapidly from the place. Should it become the destiny of one of these fragile beings to become a steady, well behaved oyster, it finally settles itself on some suitable resting place, to which it makes itself fast—no one ever knows clearly how—by the under-valve or shell. The bristle like shells of cilia, no longer of any utility, disappear, and now, a permanent fixture, the baby oyster begins to grow. At about a foot night old it is not much bigger than a fair-sized pin's head, and at three months about that of a split pea. Having attained a year's growth, under favorable conditions, the young oyster will become as big as an ordinary half-penny, while at four years' growth, they are considered a marketable.

Stanley in Spain

Edward King thus describes, in Scribner's Monthly for November, his meetings at a restaurant in Madrid, with the discoverer of Livingstone:

I was aroused by the sound of a fresh voice eagerly pronouncing my name. Well! well! here is another government spy I thought, and turned contemptly. A short, stalwart energetic young man, plainly dressed and with his hat in his hand, was rapidly questioning the hotel clerk, whose office overlooked the dining-room. Finally, with an impatient gesture, he turned away and came towards me. He accosted me in Castilian, whereupon I shook my head. Then he burst into a gratified laugh, and seizing my hands, said:

"It's all right. You are , aren't you. They said at the Legation that you were going to Valencia, and I go too. Stanley—John Hay mentioned me, didn't he. It's all right. Train leaves in an hour. I'll jump into the carriage, get a clean shirt, and be back in fifteen minutes. Are your papers ready? Yes. We must be off to-night, or the thing will be over before we get there."

All this in a breath; and he was gone, not even waiting to hear my rapturous assent to his proposition, or rather his command.

I was at the hotel door in ten minutes, and shortly after he came hurtling over the pavement in a little coach, crying loudly to the coachman to whip up, and threatening him with direst vengeance if we missed the train. We arrived at the station two minutes before the long line of express carriages, crowded with cloaked and heavily-armed officers, started; and it was not until we were rattling along the rail at twenty miles an hour (that is express speed in Spain), that I had an opportunity to study my companion's face.

The head was small, but well fashioned, and poised upon a shapely neck; the movements were quick as those of a bird, and graceful withal; the eyes seemed always looking far away, at something beyond, to be reached and won; the facile lips were never at a loss for some deft expression, which came pat home to the thought; and the brow fairly shone sometimes, when the whole features were aglow with the enthusiasm which seemed to permeate every fiber of the man's being. The quaintness, oddity, picturesqueness of the face when the lips were telling some dashing adventure of travel; the cosmopolitan breadth and untamed vigor of thought which I afterwards learned so heartily to love; the sublimated vagabondage which now and then illuminated the countenance, or crept almost imperceptibly into the conversation, were all exhibited in an hour I had made up my mind, ere we had smoked our second cigar, that my companion was honest, original and wise.

He had no unpleasant self-consciousness; his mind was as healthy as his body; as guiltless of vanity as was his frame of infirmity. He plunged at once into a sparkling account of his Abyssinian adventures, for which I had asked him; and although he naturally was the hero of his own tale, still he seemed to fancy the Stanley of whom he spoke some person in whom he was not immediately interested, and did not hesitate to mention his faults and discouragements freely. The evening wore rapidly away; and as I was listening to the story of the "looting," after the taking of Magdala, the train came to a stop at Albacete, and Stanley, springing to the window, began eagerly demanding the news of the loiterers about the station.

Respectable Sinning.

When we incur expenses which are out of proportion to the extent of our pecuniary resources, in order that we may, by so doing, make a respectable appearance in the sight of our neighbors, and thus attract towards us their favorable notice and attention, we give proof of the fact that we regard men more than we regard God.

When (at Christmas, and on other occasions of a similar kind) we make costly presents to such wealthy and influential persons, as we desire to regard as as their friends, while, at the same time, we are far from liberal in the number and value of the gifts which we bestow upon such poor and humble persons as really need our charity, we by our conduct openly declare how much more anxious we are to gain the friendship and good opinion of men, than we are to stand high in the favor of God.

When from our poor, ignorant, or shabbily dressed, though pious neighbors, we wilfully withhold those little acts of kindness, and tokens of respect and attention, which we so freely, and as a matter of right, bestow upon those who are well dressed and who (as we think) possess wealth and influence which we at some future day, may be able to make useful to us, we render ourselves guilty of the sin of human respect.

When we fail to express our disapprobation of the wrongful acts of men in power, while, at the same time, we openly and harshly denounce and declaim against those of a similar character, though of less magnitude, when such sins are committed by poor ignorant persons, occupying obscure positions in the world, we by our conduct make known to all who take notice of us, that we fear and respect our fellow men, more than we fear and respect Him who made both them and us, and who doth not regard the person of any man.

It has been wisely said by a wise man, that the surest way to put a speedy end to the wrong doing is for the by-standers and those to whose knowledge the wrongful act shall be brought, to express as much abhorrence of the act, and as much indignation against the offender, as may be justly felt by the party injured by the wrongful act. Were we all to act thus, we would soon be able to keep evil doers in check by the force of public opinion.

A man whose reputation for wisdom is very great, once said that "if he were permitted to write the ballads, he cared not who made the laws of the country." In like manner I say that if good and wise men, control public opinion, it matters not how wicked and foolish the laws may be, for laws are executed strictly or otherwise, as public opinion is in favor of, or opposed to them.—Church Work.

An English acre consists of 6,272,640 square inches, and an inch deep of rain on an acre yields 6,272,640 cubic inches of water, which, at 277,274 cubic inches to the gallon, makes 22,622,205 gallons, and as a gallon of distilled water weighs 10 lbs, the rain-fall on an acres 226,222 lbs. avordupois. As 2,240 lbs are a ton, an inch deep of rain weighs 100,933 tuns, or nearly 101 tuns per acre. For every 100th of an inch a tun of water falls per acre.

The school population of Chicago is 88,000, but of this number only 28,000 or only thirty-three per cent. are enrolled. Making a very liberal estimate of the number being educated in private schools and colleges, the conclusion is therefore inevitable that fifty per cent. of all the children of Chicago are growing up in the darkest ignorance.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Acknowledging the manifold favors which we have received as a people during the year now drawing to a close, and thankful for plenteous harvests, general health and assured prosperity, I recommend to the people of this State the observance of Thursday, the twenty eighth day of November, A. D. 1872, as a day of thanksgiving and praise to the Great Author of all blessings, and that on that day the people assemble in their usual places of worship and render thanks for the great benefits we have received at His hands."

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed. Done at the Executive Office, in the city of Salem, this 7th day of November, A. D. 1872.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, Nov. 13, 1872.

Gold to New York to-day, 11⅜.

Bonds, c's 111¼; 67's 113¾.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 89½ buying; 89¾ selling.

Exchange by telegraph, via New York, 1½ @ 2½ per cent premium, via San Francisco, par to ½ per cent. premium.

Wheat in Liverpool, 12s 8d, Club, 12s 6d @ 12s 7d.

Our local money market is still in an unsettled condition. The commotion caused by the news of the Boston disaster is not settled, and financiers with as much as ordinary foresight are still unable to see clearly through the crisis and foretell the issue. Not until fuller particulars, such as can be had by mail only are received is it safe to hazard a prediction or guess at what may be the ultimate effect of the disaster. We may then see what course the capitalists of the country will take in consequence of the matter, and be better able to judge.

In the meantime our local finances will inevitably be in the unsettled state noted, and transactions in a long time will decrease.

Treasure Accumulations.

From an exchange we learn that the amount of funds in the U. S. Treasury and at the great money centers of Europe, on the 1st of September and October last, were as follows:

National Banks

The Deseret National Bank at Salt Lake, organized in October, is numbered 2,059. The capital is $200,000, and limited to $1,000,000. Brigham Young is President.

Fifty new banks commenced business in October in the United States. Nine of them were in Pennsylvania, six in Ohio, four in New York, four in Missouri, and three in Minnesota.

There are—or were before the fire—62 National Banks in Boston. The largest capital is $3,000,000, and only one has that capital. Four others have $2,000,000 each; seven, $1,000,000 each, eighteen, $1,000,000, each; and the remainder from $200,000 to $900,000 each. The total capital of the 62 banks is $10,700,000, while the curious profits in June last were $14,383,000. All pay dividend of 4 to 7 per cent per annum.

The Cotton Crop.

The cotton trade is shown by an article in the New York Mercantile Journal of the 2d inst. to be considerably increased over last year. The receipts at the ports for the week under review were 111,835 bales, as compared with 93,682 bales for a corresponding period last year. The exports for the week amount to 18,800 bales, against 41,010 bales in 1871. The totals since the commencement of the year, of both receipts and shipments, at the principal ports, are as follows:

New Orleans, bales	30,076	19,685	6,664	9,632
Mobile	10,220	11,233
Charleston	11,256	10,272	502
Florida	93
Savannah	20,487	51,509		12,000
Charleston	14,060	30,112	1,761	2,500
New York	10,157	22,818	12,367	2,269
Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore	9,741	22,103	42	593
Total	111,835	257,803	21,365	27,543
Previously reported	406,623		99,650	42,020
Total since Sep. 1, '72	518,458	257,803	120,015	69,564
Same time last year	556,103	246,980	127,071	12,061

The above estimates comprise the principal cotton ports in the country, and the transactions at others are comparatively small.

The Coal Trade of the Country.

The history of the coal trade of the United States furnishes the most striking evidence of the rapid progress of the country in manufactures and commerce. Previous to 1820, the year in which coal mining commenced, there were very few factories and workshops, no railroads, and almost no steam vessels. Since that date manufacturing establishments have sprung up in almost all directions with amazing rapidity, thus creating a demand for fuel. The following table, showing the progress of anthracite coal-mining in Pennsylvania, indicates also the progress of the country generally in manufactures and wealth:

Years.	Total tons production.
1820	365
1830	174,794
1840	864,870
1850	3,535,909
1860	8,651,323
1870	15,845,899
1871	16,115,407

The production of 1872 promises to be larger than in any previous year. The total production of anthracite for the year to Sept. 21st was 14,703,976 tons, against 10,120,786 to the same date last year—an increase of 4,072,388 tons. The total production of all kinds of coal for the same period—January 1, 1872, to September 21, 1872—was 15,965 670 tons, against 11,712,634 tons to corresponding time last year—an increase of 4,243,036 tons.

Wine Trade of California.

An exchange says the wine trade of California during the present season has been generally unsatisfactory. The causes are apparent in the falling off of export demand, the scarcity and high price of casks, the stringency of the money market, and the anticipated depreciation of prices attending the incoming vintage. Ordinary dry wines of this vintage are freely offered for delivery between January and May, 1873, at 25 cents P gallon, without casks. The supply of red and white dry wines is very large—far in excess of the demand. There is a fair demand for Port of good quality and an adequate supply. Inferior qualities are abundant and unsalable. Angelica is in request and in good supply, and other high-flavored dry and sweet muscats. There is in the market very little pound, good wine of two or more years old. The supply of old grape spirit is exhausted; now is coming to hand freely and finds ready sale. Low proof brandy is abundant, the market heavy. The current rates of freight by steamship via Panama are in gold—14 cents P gallon (slow), and 12½@ P gallon (fast) freight by rail, in quantities of not less than 18,000 pounds (car load), in wood, the rate, in currency, P 100 lbs, for To New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia ... $2 00
To Omaha, Chicago and St Louis ... 2 50
To Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Pittsburg ... 2 25

Return of Seized Goods.

The Secretary of the Treasury has decided that seized goods, not exceeding $1000 in value, may be released to the claimant by the Collector, on authority from the Department, on the payment of their appraised value, and of the expenses incident to seizure, and waiving in writing all claims to legal proceedings in consequence of the seizure. If the goods exceed $100 in value, and the claimant refuses to put appraised, the Collector is to report them for libel to the District Attorney; but if they do not exceed $100 in value, and if they are not released to the owner, they shall be auctioned and sold, and the claimant notified of his right to contest forfeiture, on the conditions specified in section 12 of the Act of July, 1866.

Home Produce Market.

We have no important changes to note to-day, prices remaining unchanged and receipts smaller than usual. In the staple of Wheat the supply is large, and purchasers and producers alike seem a little afraid to deal largely. Though the ruling rate is very low we as yet see no bright prospect of any important advance soon. The British markets have been already unusually large receivers, while their home productions have been but little short of average. The Liverpool market is quoted up in to-day. Ours is unchanged.

Shipping Intelligence.

The Orgtamme reports a vessel inside the bar, but was unable to identify her.

The bark Mclanethon arrived at San Francisco on the 7th inst.

DR. C. O. GLASS.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,
623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL,
San Francisco. Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Sexual Diseases (of whatever standing) and Venereal Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.
The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.
How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of those horrible, life destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Sexual Weakness.
Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, so depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the majority of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head ringing in the ears, noise like the rushing of waves and rattling of carriages, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confusion of ideas, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, cough, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. Relief to be obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a speedy and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of the complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.
Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.
All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.
Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary ones of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are blacksmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The object is by so doing to avoid inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, protended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.
REMEMBER DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post office Box 1,957.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.
Consultations FREE.
